Tips for coloring unicorns

Unicorns are the perfect excuse to use every color in the box. For the classic storybook look, try a soft pink, lilac and turquoise mane with a golden horn. Or go bold and give the mane full rainbow stripes. Leaving the body white while the mane and tail carry all the color almost always looks great. If you color with markers, print on slightly thicker paper (cardstock) so nothing bleeds through; crayons and pencils are happy on regular printer paper.

Which unicorn should you print first?

For toddlers, start with the two easy designs. Extra-thick lines and big open areas made for first-time colorists. Kids around four to eight usually reach for the scenes: the birthday party, the rainbow jump or the fairytale castle. Older kids and grown-ups love the patterned-mane portrait, which colors like a mini mandala. Hosting a unicorn party? Print a stack of the birthday unicorn and you have an instant activity table.

More magical coloring

Princess fans should head to our princess coloring pages next: royal printables with ball gowns, tea parties and castle balconies. Our mermaid coloring pages take the same magic under the waves, with seahorse rides, coral gardens and a castle on the sea floor. And you can browse every magical collection in one place on our fantasy coloring pages hub, where new creatures always land first.

How to print

Every page is sized for US Letter and prints on A4 without cropping if you set your printer to "fit to page". Print single-sided so colors do not show through, and use cardstock if you plan to use markers. There are no watermarks and no sign-up, on any page.
